Frende. 1593.

A new Almanacke and Prognostication,

of our Lorde God.

Composed according to lawfull and lawdable art, and referred specially to the meridian and elevation of the northern pole of [illegible], but may serue vniuersally, without any great error, for most partes of Englande.

By Gabriell Frende, practitioner in Astrologie and Phisicke.

Regimen huius mundi, et viuentium, est à stellis, et maximè a Sole, et Luna.

Watkins and Iames Roberts.

To the friendly, and indifferent Reader, Salutations.

SOme frame new bookes, to please the grauer sort,
And some to pleasure youth, their pennes do frame:
Some write of pleasant matters to make sport,
And some touch weightie affayres to purchase fame.
Fame seeke I noone, nor pastimes can deuise
To please, and pleasure, loe this exercise.

I meane, to please such, as peruse such workes:
And pleasure such, as thereof shall haue vse.
Wherein, I hope, there no such matter lurkes,
As may t'olde, or young yeeres, seeme an abuse.
Then take it, as I geue it, with good will,
Respect the geuers mynde, accept his skill.

Gabriel Freend.

Frende. 1593.

A Prognostication

for the yeere of our redemption by Christ Iesus M.D.XC.III.

Wherein the disposition of the ayre throwout eche Reuolution, with sundry other agreeable notes and remembrances meete for such a worke, are playnely and briefly set downe according to the groundes and rules of lawfull art.

By Gabriell Frende, practitioner in Phillicke, and student in Astronomy.

The Starres are thought to rule the worlde,
By auncientes learned skill:
But God doth rule, and ouerrule,
And turnes them at his owyll.
Yet must we not the Starres defy,
Which shewe his powver so wyondrously

A generall description of the foure Quarters, or Reuolutions of this yeere, wherein is briefly expressed what euentes are for the most part like to happen vnder eache of them.

1. Of the Winter quarter. ☉ in ♑.♒.♓.

WInter, the lyst part of this common yeere, according to our accustomed Englyshe reckoning, began Anno. 1592. the xii. day of December, being Tuesday: and shall continue in this present yeere. 1593. vntyll the xi day of March next folowyng.

The state and condition of the ayre this Quarter, is lyke (accordyng to Astrologicall and other artificiall circumstaunces) for the most part to proue kinde, and seasonable for the tyme, namely colde and moyst, which are the proper qualities naturally incident to Winter season.

The frostes this Winter shall for the most part be small, and foggy, of no long continuance together, but of such we are lyke to haue great store. The moysture that falleth shall most commonly be rayne, and sleete, then flakes of snow, whereof we are lyke to haue but small store this Winter. Neyther shall the ayre be inclined to such boysterous wyndes, and thunderyng blastes, as it hath been in some Winters immediately preceding: those which come, shall most what blow South, and Southwest.

The sicknesses of this Quarter, are most lyke to be singultus and wyndines in the head, rawnes and colines in the stomache, stuffing and stoppyng in the Lungs, Pluresies, Rewmes, [illegible], quotidian Agues, Dropsies, Consumptions, and such lyke. As for other affayres, I omit to speake of.

2. Of the Spring time. ☉. in ♈. ♉. ♊.

The seconde Quarter of this common yeere, called the Spring, which euermore taketh place at the Sunnes entraunce into Aries, beginneth this yeere the. xi. day of March being Sunday, betweene. iii. and. iiii. a clocke in the mayning, and holdeth vntyll the. xii. day of June next ensuing.

The entraunce of this quarter, I meane March, and the beginning of Aprill, wythe by my collections, vnles sondrly inclyned to colde ill interlyke and euermoyst weather, not without some hayle, snow, steere, and such stormy blastes, as wyll I feare me turne vs to much hinderaunce in our Corne and Cattle, vnlesse our good God of his accustomed mercies towardes his welbeloued country Englande, turne the same from vs: which we are humbly to crave at his heauenly handes with vnfayned prayers.

The residue, or other partes of this Reuolution, are by iudicialles Astrologicall, lyke to passe more seasonable and kynde, sauyng that now and then sundry variable blastes, and loude whistling windes shall diuersly alter, and interchangeably affect the ayre, with new and vnlyke dispositions, throughout the whole course thereof in a maner.

The most ordinary and common infirmities raignyng this quarter, wythe wandryng and vncertayne Agues, Scabbes, Itche, Morphewes, Frenzles, Swellinges, aches in the Ioyntes, payues in the Eyes, rewmes, coughes, besides a new pestilent kinde of Ague, which wyll, I doubt, begin to be ouer busie in many places, towardes the later ende of this Spring tyme.

Touching other matters, Butter and Cheese, wyll (I suppose) be somewhat higher, and beuies of price at the beginning of this Quarter, then they are vsually wont: and so I feare me wyll Flesh and Corne, and all maner of Victuailles, for the most part. But after myd May, I hope we shall enioy a more plentifull and easie condition of the premisses. May tyme is lyke to be fayre, and reasonable plentifull: Maryons shall not thryue well in many places

ees this Spring. But finally, the want of any necessary shalbe tollerable, yf we be not intollerably wantyng to our selues. I meane, yf we lyue in good order, euery man in his callyng.

3. Of the Sommer quarter. ☉, in ♋.

The thyrde part of this common yeere, called the Sommer quarter, beginneth at the tyme of the Sunnes passage into Cancer, which shalbe vpon the. xii. day of June being Tuesday, about. xii. a clocke at nyght: and shall from thence endure vntyll the. xiii. day of September next folowyng.

Touching the generall disposition and constitution of the ayre this Sommer, I perceiue by the rules and maximes of Astrologie, that the same is for the most part vnlyke to be vnseasonably distempered with any great drought, or long exceeding heate: but that the ayre most what wylbe temperate, and very coole, partly throwe the breathinges of whysking wyndes, and partly by meanes of rayny shewers, and stormy moysture, wherof we are lyke to haue great store this quarter: and yet in such sort, I hope, that they shall not be greatly offensiue or hurtfull to the good estate and prosperous increase of the fruites of the earth. Thunders, and loude cracking clappes we shall haue often: but as for dry lyghtnynges, and flashyng elementes, I finde small lykelyhood of many suche vnder this Reuolution.

The infirmities of the tyme, are hot Agues, as Tertians, Causons, and such lyke. Item Frensies, Sweates, Headache, Opthalmies, Squinances, hot Apostumes, yellow Jaundies, Vomiting, fluxes of blood, aches in the backe and loynes, the Plague, and such lyke, proceeding for the greatest part of hot blood and cholericke humors.

Concerning other accidentes, there shoulde be many collections, for many reportes of warre and bloodshed, and much vnbridled behauiour amongst the wicked in many places. The eye are not lyke to thriue well, wherevpon may arise a penury of victuall, and no great plenty of Beeres: for such wylde also nearely valued this Quarter, in respect of other more plentifull Sommers. Cattle and Honey are lyke to be reasonable plentifull: and lykewyse Whitemeates shalbe somewhat beside of price. The residue I leave to the iudgementes of others, skylfull in this facultie.

4. Of Autumne, or Harueſt quarter, otherwiſe tearmed the Fall of the Leafe.

AVtumne, or the Harueſt reuolution, being the fourth and laſt Quarter of this common yeere, by our vſuall Englyshe accompt, maketh his entrance at the moment of the Sunnes ingreſſe into Libra, which wylbe this yeere vpon the. xiii. day of September being Thurſeday, a lytle before hygh noone: from which inſtant, it ſhall continue vntyll the. xii. day of December, being Wedneſday next immediately inſuing.

The beginning of this quarter wylbe diſpoſed to heate, and Sommerlyke weather, namely tyll towardes Michaelmas: afterwardes it ſhall proue more coole and moyſt, but withall very variable and vncertayne, in ſuch ſort, that we ſhall haue heate and cold, moyſture and dryneſs all in a day, and that often tymes too, ſo diuerſely and vnconſtantly is the ayre lyke to be affected. But November wyll dryng in more certaine weather, for it is lyke to be much inclyned to ſnow, foggy myſtes, blacke froſtes, ſleete, ſtormes of hayle, and ſuch lyke winterlyke, and hurtfull effectes. But as for lowde thundering wyndes, and froſty troubleſome fearefull blaſtes, I ſuppoſe we ſhall not haue ſo many of them now, as are vſually wont to be during that ſeaſon of the yeere: ſo calme and quiet wyll the ayre be for the moſt part.

For ſickneſſe, and deadly griefes, this part of the yeere excepeth all the reſt, for what diſeaſes almoſt may there be named, which are not not now stirring and vexing mens bodyes: but chiefly the most vsuall and proper infirmities of this Quarter, are according to the doctrine of Hyppocrates quartane Agues, swelling of ỹ Splene, Tympanies, Consumptions, the Falling sicknesse, madnesse, heavinesse of wynde, Angmacs and such lyke.

As for other alterys, and euentes, this Reuolution seemeth to iumpe with the other preceding: wherefore I finde nothing here worth the noting, which is not already touched in the former quarters, sauing this, that we are now lyke to heare of more Shrywraches and Pyracies, then before.

A prognosticall Iudgement vpon the Eclipse of the Sunne before mentioned in the beginning of my Almanacke, to happen this yeere.

MEssahalah an ancient Astrologer amongst the Arabians, sayth: That there neuer happeneth any Eclipse or darkning of the Sunnes beames, but that there ensue some great, and fearefull accidentes in the worlde after the same. And also other wryters in this Art are of opinion, that an Eclipse of the Sunne is much more notable, and of farre greater effect, then any Eclipse of the Moone, howsoeuer they are not withstanding of great consequence oftentimes, and allwayes thought very worthy the noting. Touching the present obscuration, so much as it falleth out in the first decane of the signe Gemini, it signifieth according to the opinion and doctrine of Proclus Lycius, a famous wryter in this kinde, much dissention, strife, sedition, and sundry hurliburlies amongst many in diuers parties of Christendome. Item, much wrath, hatred, enuy, and malyce: also contempt of lawes, and neglect of Christian pietie and brotherly charitie one towardes another. Which generall iudgement of this seemeth now to be more specially confirmed by the place or house of the heauens it selfe, wherein the present Eclipse befalleth, namely the. ix. house. ge. And albeit in respect of the small quantitie thereof, this Eclipse can not signifie no great matters, according to the iudgements of some Astrologers: yet the infortunate oppositon of Saturne and Iupiter in the figure at that tyme, Saturne being then also lynked to Venus, and Mars being withall founde vnluckely disposed in the. v. house, cannot, by other as founde iudicialles, but increase the former effectes mentioned by Proclus, and styre vp somme other as heavy accidentes, vnles it shal please God of his singuler goodnes to frustrate the same, which he can, and wyll effectually performe, yf we call vpon him faythfully.

The conclusion to the Reader.

LO gentle Reader thus I haue descride
the state of this yeere present, nynty three:
And haue according to my skyll, applyde
my pen, to write nothing but trueth to thee.
Howbeit, yf ought perchaunce falles out amisse,
The wysest are deceyued: remember this.

A wyse man by foresight preuentes much yll,
For Prudence greater is then fickell Fate:
The Starres do but inclyne: and greatest skyll
Is daunted in the waueryng aires estate.
If nothing then be of necessity,
In this kynde, how may we write certaynly?

All knowledge of future euentes contingent is:
God altereth all, euen as it lykes him best,
When we feare least, he soone puttes all amis:
And when we are vexed most, he oft sendes rest.
Seeing then he is onely true, and none but hee,
To him alone, all power ascribed be. Amen.
